BACKGROUND

The Regional Universities Forum for Capacity Building in Agriculture (RUFORUM) is a consortium of 170 universities in 40 African countries with a vision to create 'vibrant, transformative universities to catalyse sustainable, inclusive agricultural development to feed and create prosperity for Africa' (for more information, visit www.ruforum.org). The second RUFORUM Operational Plan 2024-2028 of the RUFORUM Vision 2030 clearly articulates the processes and actions that RUFORUM and partners will take to achieve the Vision, with the goal of strengthening the catalysis of transformations within Africa's higher agricultural and education sectors for increased efficiency and effectiveness of mission delivery, productivity growth, and development impact by the broader RUFORUM network.

RUFORUM has thus grown radically over the years since its founding in 2004 by ten university Vice-Chancellors, and was established to foster integration of African universities into the national agricultural innovation systems; provide a platform for training quality graduates to support development processes in Africa; rationalise resource use and enhance economies of scale and scope; and provide a platform for networking, resource mobilisation, and advocacy for agriculture.

As a vibrant network, RUFORUM promotes collaborative efforts among member universities and stakeholders in the higher education and agriculture sectors through a number of engagements, including the annual general meeting (AGM), which is planned and held alternately by member countries. The AGM is the RUFORUM Network's highest decision-making body, overseeing Network interventions, carrying out functions deemed relevant to the achievement of RUFORUM objectives, and serving as a catalyst for leveraging resources and mutually beneficial partnerships between and among universities within and outside the Network.

The 20th AGM coincides with the implementation of the medium-term operational plan 2024-2028 of the RUFORUM Network. This AGM is therefore a special convening for RUFORUM to showcase the renewed commitment to transforming the higher agricultural education and education sectors in Africa.
